THE NATIONAL TRANSCONTINENTAL RAILWAY

YESTERDAY'S SPORTS QUIET

By H. F. G.

The Hon. Arthur Meighen, who is the champion private banker of the Government, spoke recently of the National Transcontinental Railway as "throwing its sinister shadow across Canada from the Atlantic to the Pacific."

This, together with the fact that Hon. Frank Cochrane and General Macdowell have been buying a lot of second-hand locomotives and rolling stock for the National Transcontinental line, is taken to mean that this great enterprise is to get the worst of it in the future, and that it is in the past, from the Borden Government.

The N. T. R. has no friends in the present administration. The objection to it is not that it isn't a big class railway—indeed it is the best built railway on the continent—but that it wasn't born right. The Liberals feared it and the Conservatives Government doesn't think any more of it. For the Conservatives' heart is not in it. A step which the Liberals have been using to get something on the "Gites."

The Laurier Government was very careful to give Grand Trunk Pacific Company no excuse for declining to take over the road or any portion of its completion. The company was never on operating the "lean" portion of the road from Cochrane east, but the Laurier Government kept them strictly to their bargain. That was all changed, however, when the Borden Government came in. After that the company did not have to look for far down the coast which could relieve them of executing the lease. Grades were altered, switchbacks substituted and important changes in the line and terminal were made in the city of Quebec, not only without the consent of the Grand Trunk Pacific Company, which was imperative under the agreement, but also against the active protest of the G. T. P. In fact, the Borden Government not only invited the company to refuse to operate the line, but actually provided the necessary evidence for the company to do so.

Along with these other acts of hostility to the National Transcontinental Railway, the Borden Government has pursued a policy of playing favorites—namely, the C. N. R. and the C. P. R. The C. P. R. was rich and powerful and had no great need of the Borden Government, so the C. N. R. which was still hungry for money, was adopted as the Conservative railway.

Anything it could get would be that much less for the National Transcontinental. As a result of this policy the management of the Government is liable to have two transcontinental railways on its hands, a high class one, N. T. R. which having been built right in the first place, cost little for repairs and renewals, and another, a "rod" railway, the C. N. R. which was thrown together in a great hurry and will need rebuilding almost immediately at a cost of $150,000,000. Hated by the Liberals could hardly go further.

When the National Transcontinental Railway bill was in its formative stages there was a great deal of Conservative opposition in fact, the Conservative candidates, particularly in the Northwest, clamored for it, Conservative newspapers in British Columbia favored its development.

Of that province, the Grain Growers' Association endorsed it. Boards of Trade from Vancouver to Halifax gave it their unqualified approval, and the late Hon. Stanley Burdett spoke strongly in favor of it in the House of Commons. In short there was plenty of unbiased opinion in favor of the National Transcontinental.

Yesterday's sports were not quite as brisk as usual for some unaccountable reason. There was practically nothing doing at the grounds in the afternoon except a football game between the juniors of Starely and the juniors of Careshaw which resulted in a score of three to one in favor of the latter. The same teams played a ball game with the result that the Careshaw lads won by score of twenty-four to eight.

Then in the evening Balchfield senior played the Careshaw senior baseball team and the score was eight to five in favor of Careshaw.

While, as we say there was not quite as much interest shown in yesterday's sports as there has been shown in the past there is being made arrangements for a big time next Wednesday and weather permitting it is hoped that this will be the big day of the season. A baseball tournament is being arranged for. Everybody come.

"BLACK BOX" IS POPULAR

The "Black Box" is a very popular device, and is used in many places. It is a small box, usually made of metal, which is used to store important documents or valuables. It is often used in homes, offices, and businesses. The box is usually locked and has a keyhole. It is often used to store money, jewelry, and other valuables. It is also used to store important documents, such as contracts, deeds, and wills. The box is often used to store sensitive information, such as passwords and confidential data. It is a very useful device and is highly recommended for anyone who wants to keep their valuables and documents safe.

Western Canada Crop Reports

Special press bulletin issued at Ottawa, July 13 by the Census and Statistics Office gives the following report on the condition of crops throughout Western Canada on July 13, as summarized from telegrams dispatched from the Dominion Experimental Farms and Stations and Department of Trade and Commerce and Agriculture.

MANITOBA.—From Brandon it is reported that crop growth has been retarded by dry weather during the last half of the month and by cold later. Good rains fell during the last half of the month and there is an ample moisture for the present needs. Warm weather and occasional showers would insure a good crop. Hay is light and corn backward.

SASKATCHEWAN.—At Indian Head, Lloydminster, Kindersley and Gull Lake grain crops are reported as looking well or excellent, beneficial rains having fallen from 4th to the 13th. Late sown wheat, oats and barley showed less damage of Indian Head from the 7th and 15th than early sown wheat. Hood crops promise well. At Kindersley oats and flax are well advanced, and at Gull Lake fifty per cent is in shot blade. Scott Station reports an abundant supply of moisture with wheat in the shot blade and a few fields behind. Other grain crops are coming along equally well, hood crops are retarded by cool weather and some districts report injury from frosts of the 19th. In southern Saskatchewan and from Swift Current north to Pelly all crops look excellent. From Pelly west to Empress crops are patchy due to outcrops of windrows and less damage of Indian Head from the 7th and 15th than early sown wheat. Hood crops promise well. Hood crops are retarded by cool weather and some districts report injury from frosts of the 19th. In southern Saskatchewan and from Swift Current north to Pelly all crops look excellent. From Pelly west to Empress crops are patchy due to outcrops of windrows and less damage of Indian Head from the 7th and 15th than early sown wheat. Hood crops promise well.

On Wednesday, July 28, there will be an excursion train run to Banff under the auspices of the Methodist Sunday Schools of High River. Train will pass through Careshaw at 5:32 in the morning and returning will leave Banff at 7 o'clock in evening. Fare for round trip, adults $3.00, children $1.55. Tickets may be purchased at any time and parties intending on taking this trip will do well to purchase tickets early and not leave them till train time.

that all grain crops, except those in very small prepared land, are suffering from drought. Unless heavy rains come soon the grain crops will be almost a total failure.

ALBERTA.—Telegrams from Edmonton, Lacombe, Carmangay, Pincher Creek, Macleod, Lethbridge and Foremost report a copious rainfall. Grain and hay crops show vigorous growth and root crops are well advanced. At Lacombe excessive rains injured about ten per cent of the area under grain but ninety per cent should produce sufficiently above the average to offset this loss. At Lethbridge conditions for grain have been ideal. Deep snow and warm weather will be beneficial. Crops in south-western Alberta are suffering slightly from excessive rains and cold weather, in south and south-eastern Alberta crops are fine though patchy in a few cases.

BRITISH COLUMBIA.—The report from Agassiz states that June has been an excellent month for crop growth. Beneficial rains fell from the 7th to the 14th and serial crops are maturing excellently. Root and field crops are above the average; hay is well under way and the clover crop is harvested. In lower more copious rains have fallen, everything extremely favorable conditions, clover and alfalfa are exceptionally well, wheat crops are only a few days from harvest.

CARESHAW'S PUBLIC SCHOOL

After being shown through the public school building of Careshaw yesterday, we must join in the sentiments of others who know in stating that Careshaw can proudly boast of having one of the finest school buildings in the province if not in the Dominion. With all its accommodations and facilities that are required during the holidays as well as could be expected of any school after a long term of ordinary usage, such as cleaning floors, blackboards and woodwork, cleaning and polishing desks with furniture polish, oiling burlap, painting all inside woodwork, cleaning drinking fountains and drains and a number of minor repairs, these are already partly finished and are rapidly being completed. The entire building will be thoroughly fumigated, so that every child who enters the school will find a clean and healthy environment.

To those pupils of the Careshaw public school who are desirous of receiving a high grade education not obtainable in the graded school of the country, they can find no better place than that which the public school of Careshaw has to offer. Its accommodations and facilities are of the highest. No better staff of teachers throughout, can be found any place. The same staff as taught last year, with the exception of Miss Porter, who taught at the Foster school last year, has been re-engaged for the ensuing term.

A number of pupils have already in the past years taken advantage of the excellent opportunities offered them here, and it is hoped that many more will grasp the same opportunity the coming term as the building and equipment is such that a large number more than have already been attending can easily be accommodated.

As a matter of fact as we have often heard mentioned and as we have seen solidified to believe, Careshaw would be an ideal place for a consolidated school district. However as we desire to look up some data on the subject of this kind of a project and give more complete details in another issue.

Hon. C. A. Windle Addresses Large Audience

While the report of this lecture is late for this issue had we been out on time as we hoped to be, we would not have omitted to have our matter and as this is the last issue before the casting of the ballot on the liquor act, we will give our readers the benefit of this, which error way it might lead.

Hon. C. A. Windle, editor of Brant's Association, of Chicago, and lecturer for the liquor interests of Alberta, addressed a large audience on the proposed Liquor Act at the Oddfellows Hall Thursday July 15.

He said in part as follows: The proposed Liquor Act abolishes the bars but does not abolish the liquor traffic.

It forbids a man to purchase at retail, but lets him buy from another province at wholesale.

It forbids a person to buy a drink but permits him to buy a drunk. It compels a man to pay his house to the government, a man to pay his wife and children.

Citizens in this province under the proposed bill can import liquor for their own use, provided they live in a private dwelling house. There is no limit on the amount they may have.

This right is denied to the man who lives in a hotel, club, apartment house, or in a lodging house, where there are more than three boarders.

You walk yourself down the street looking for a lodging house where there are more than three boarders, and you are told that the house is a private dwelling house, and you are told that the house is a private dwelling house, and you are told that the house is a private dwelling house.

If such a situation of facilities for drinking will increase drunkenness, this act is a positive measure to the province. You abolish 285 hotel bars, and drive liquor into the homes. You have 100,000 homes in the province, but suppose only half of the people want to keep liquor in their homes, the facilities for drinking will be multiplied. A bottle in the home is a greater menace to temperance than a hundred down town on a bar.

Men who want liquor now will want it then. Having it in their own homes, they will drink as they please without restrictions as to the time of day or night.

It is morally wrong to confiscate a man's investment, without compensation. He is in partnership with the government. He put his money in the business, under the sanction and protection of the government, therefore the people should compensate him if they wanted the partnership. This is what they must do, if unless they want to commit an injustice.

Section 51 and 54 places the burden of proof upon the man accused. He must prove that he did not commit the offence with which he is charged. This is a perversion of the glorious principle of British justice that holds every man innocent, until proven guilty. It destroys equality before the law.

There seems still to be considerable misunderstanding of the attitude the Careshaw Review has taken in the present campaign, despite the fact that we have repeatedly stated that we were strictly neutral on this important question. And have tried to be fair to both parties, with the result that we have made some enemies on both sides, nevertheless this has not stood and we mean to stick to it. By so doing, in giving the report of the meeting of July 15, we are not discussing the liquor act any more than we have done in the other articles by stating what was said.

Mr. Windle has been admitted by even a good many of his opponents to be the strongest speaker on the platform supporting the liquor question. We must say that he is a real orator.

We cannot altogether agree with some of his methods, such as referring to the Bible, because this was not a religious meeting, but a meeting on a moral reform question and the Bible, we believe should be left out of both sides of the question.

Since the supporters of the liquor act have held several meetings here, both in the churches as well as a couple in I. O. O. F. Hall, without, so far as we know, the slightest interference from the liquor interests, we cannot agree with Mr. Spence or any other supporter of the Liquor Act would have the privilege of the floor for thirty minutes then Mr. Windle would finish and at that time the meeting would be thrown open for questions, but this lecture had got fairly well along, there was continuous interruptions. And then just before Mr. Windle had finished and after he had given Mr. Spence an opportunity of speaking the half hour which he declined to accept. Mr. Spence arose to say something but, lost the opportunity because the audience scolded him to wait for his proper time. When he found he could not be heard at that time, someone announced that the meeting had adjourned and Mr. Windle took up his hat and left the hall. Mr. Windle's speech, which would have been otherwise a orderly meeting, in most disgraceful manner. Mr. Spence's speech, which I have been trying to get out of the entrance, it is claimed that it was only the crowd against the position that saved its destruction. This was not a meeting, it was a public trial. M. P. took a hand in the matter, but no complaint was heard as luckily there was no damage done.

We wish to denote state that while we remain neutral on the Proposed Liquor Act we cannot approve of breaking of the law preserving the peace as was done at this meeting. And we know there are any number of men here who are trying to get out of the entrance, it is claimed that it was only the crowd against the position that saved its destruction. This was not a meeting, it was a public trial. M. P. took a hand in the matter, but no complaint was heard as luckily there was no damage done.

While in an interview with Rev. W. E. MacNiven, as a member of the local committee of the Temperance and Moral Reform League, we received the following statement that he in a private interview with Mr. Windle had been asked to give the floor for five minutes to Mr. Windle, who Mr. Windle had spoken forty-five minutes, which was refused. He also states that he believes that Mr. Windle was not given the floor for five minutes, but that he was given only after Mr. Windle had concluded his remarks and the chairman had asked for questions that he announced the meeting had adjourned, where he believes Mr. Spence answered Mr. Windle's arguments satisfactorily.

Mr. Jas. McKinnay, as chairman of the local committee of the Temperance and Moral Reform League was asked for a statement on this question but being out of the town yesterday afternoon he states that he nothing to say.

Opinions on the Liquor Question

A few selections from many notable opinions of eminent men on the Liquor Question.

The Chancellor of England said in the House of Lords, "England, a few years ago that seventy-five per cent of evil of the land was due to intemperance." In the same address he said that seventy-five per cent of all social evils might be abolished by abstaining from intoxicating liquors.

The Lord Chief Justice of England in an address delivered some years ago declared that nine-tenths of the crime of England and Wales was due directly or indirectly to intoxicating liquor.

The Hon. W. E. Gladstone once said that intemperance was responsible for more victims than war, pestilence and famine combined.

Dr. Andrew Clark, one of the most noted M. Ds. of London, said that for all purpose of sustained effort alcohol only hinders.

Chief Justice Thibaudeau of Quebec, in a report to the Montreal City Council concerning a case which he presided among other things said, "Among the plagues that have pelated the body after selling the soul there are two most terrible, drunkenness and prostitution. They are almost inseparable, a hideous pair, challenging divinity, defying civilization, rebelling against all law, and often controlling the destiny of nations. Let us not forget that the young men especially, the saloon, where freer than is implied, is the auto room to the second house."

Sir Foster Freilton, Recorder of the city of London, England, in one of the sessions of the city of London Court last autumn said that in consequence of the closing of the bars two hours earlier every evening, crimes had decreased over thirty per cent in the city of London.

The proprietor of the Queen's Hotel, Claresholm, in conversation with a friend is reported to have said, "Beers is good stuff to sell, but a poor stuff to drink." Advertising.

The Hustler And The Worrier

Whenever Jim Green owed a neighbor a bill,
He worried.
On top of a fence rail all day he sat still

And worried.
"What's the matter?" folks asked as they travelled that way
"Your looking so gloomy and downcast to-day?"

"I owe" he would answer, "a debt I can't pay
And I'm worried"
Whenever a merchant refused for their trust,

He worried.
Wherever he wandered he kicked up the dust,
And worried.

He'd pause by the wayside to think of his debts,
And spend all the morning rehearsing regrets,
And wail: "Little sympathy anyone gets
When he's worried."

Whenever Jack White owed a neighbor a bill,
He hustled.

He dug in his toes and he worked with a will
And hustled.

He clung to his smile and he kept up his chin,
Redoubled his efforts to bring in the tin,
Went out for the coin for the debt he was in,
And he hustled.

He didn't take time to sit down in despair,
And worried;

He didn't complain of his burdens of care
Or his worry;

No debt ever frightened the soul of Jack White
Or caused him to think it was useless to fight;

He held to the thought that he'd come out alright,
And he hustled.

Jack White doesn't owe anybody today,
He hustled;

His debts, big and little he managed to pay
For he hustled.

Jim Green isn't welcome in places of trade,
His debts still remain on their books as unpaid,

No serious effort to meet them he made,
But he worried.

The death took place at St. Mary's hospital, on Monday night at 9 p. m., of Dr. C. W. Fawcett, V. S. The deceased was found at the depot during the afternoon suffering from an overdose of a drug, which he apparently was in the habit of taking. Dr. Robertson was called and rendered all aid possible. Later the deceased was removed to the hospital where he expired. The internment took place Wednesday morning. Messrs Gooder and Davis were the undertakers. Trochu Tribune.

Wilt thou take her for thy "pach," for better or for worse; to have, to hold, to fondly guard, till banished off in the heart? Wilt thou let her have her way, consult her many wishes, make the fire up every day, and help her with the dishes? Wilt thou give her all the "stuff" her little purse will pack, buy her a monkey box and muff, a little seal skin seque? Wilt thou comfort and support her father, mother, Aunt Jemima, Uncle John, thirteen sisters and a brother? And his face grew pale and blank, it was too late to jilt; as through the chapel floor he sank, he said, "I wilt."

DO IT NOW

The Department of Agriculture begs to advise the farmers of the province that in view of the large increase in the acreage seeded to grain and the promising crop conditions, there is likely a very great demand this season for harvest help and as there are a large number of unemployed workmen in our cities at the present time it would be well to engage such help as may be needed at the earliest possible moment.

Hitherto it has been the policy of the railway companies to induce westward immigration for harvest help, but this year it may be assumed that as such movement will be possible, as conditions in the Eastern provinces are very similar to those in the West with very little or no immigration from Europe.

At the present time there are a certain number of unemployed in Alberta. There are now, however, over 100,000 men under arms, and recruiting is progressing steadily. Before harvest therefore, it is safe to conclude that upward of 50,000 more men will have been withdrawn. It is also expected that railway and multiple work will rapidly employ many of the present unemployed, so there is likely to be a scarcity of help for harvest work if arrangements are not made at once to secure the necessary assistance.

LOST HER DINNER.

A Surprise For a Hunter and Another For a Panther.

An old hunter tells of a curious experience he had some years ago in the Ozarks. He had been tramping all morning when he came upon a group of trees, and, feeling tired, he stretched himself in a shady spot and fell asleep. He says:

"I woke a little later to find myself covered with leaves and small brush. I was puzzled, sure enough, for I couldn't think what could have covered me up, but I decided to get up. First I got a dead log about six feet long, laid it where I had slept and covered it with leaves and small brush. I looked to see whether my gun was loaded, and then I hid in a clump of bushes some twenty or twenty-five yards away. After about twenty minutes I heard a noise. I peered out of the bushes and saw a large side snapper coming through the trees, followed by a quarter grown cub. He circled round the mound of leaves a couple of times. The cub followed every action of its mother. After the second round the old panther crouched as if for a spring. She crouched lower and lower and kept drawing her feet closer together. She kept her eyes fastened on the mound of leaves all the time and swayed her tail from side to side with a slow, regular motion.

"When she had gathered her feet as close together as she could she sprang for the pile of leaves. She landed in the very middle of the pile and gave several long, wicked rakes with her hind feet. Then she began to crawl and scratch in the leaves. It didn't take her long to find out that there was nothing but an old log there, and she stopped scratching and began to look about. I thought that now was the time to settle matters. I was a little to her left and behind her. I caught a sight just at the base of her ear and fired. She gave one leap and a shrill scream and then lay still.

"After making sure that she was dead I looked for the cub. It was sitting near by on the side of a leaning tree, spitting and snarling angrily. I soon put an end to that with a rifle ball. I never knew how small he would be as I was without being hurt. She probably took me for dead and covered me to keep other animals from finding me while she went after her cub."—Foster's Companion.

War's Three Armies.

A great war leaves the country with three armies—an army of cripples, an army of mortally wounded and an army of thieves.—German proverb.

Suffer no horse to slide by without its shoe improvement—Thomas's Rubber.

THREE MILK HINTS.

How Cleanliness, Economy, Health, May Be Furthered.

In the interests of cleanliness, economy and health it is of the utmost importance to know how to take proper care of milk. No other article of food becomes so easily contaminated. Merely to make sure that the milk you buy is pure is not sufficient, for there are countless ways in which it can be rendered unfit for use after it reaches your home.

Before removing the cap from a bottle of milk the cap should be washed and carefully wiped with a clean cloth. The cap should not be pushed down into the milk. It may be easily rendered unfit with a sharp-pointed instrument without injuring the contents. The bottle when once opened should be kept covered, and the milk should be kept in the original bottle until it is used up. The original cap should not be replaced, but instead an inverted glass can be placed over the top of the bottle.

The bottle when not in use should, of course, always be left in the refrigerator, and any milk that has been poured from it into another vessel should not be poured back.

Onions and other foods having a strong odor, especially during the hot weather, very easily impart their distinctive smell to milk that is left uncovered. This is an additional reason for always keeping milk in a covered receptacle.

The Tear as Bookworm.

The Kaiser has always prided himself on his attainments. He has given his friends the impression that he was a great soldier, and a great sailor, that he could write poetry and compose music, and that some of his paintings deserved to hang in the Berlin salon. As a matter of fact he has not the intellectual attainments of the Tsar, who has called himself the bookworm of Europe. Though narrow in his sympathies, the Russian Emperor is a wonderfully well-read man. His Asiatic tour installed in him a love of Indian history.

The Tsarina, though admired for her cold aristocratic beauty, has been as much a mystery as her husband. In the company of her children she is revealed as an affectionate, warm-hearted woman, away from the nursery she seems to hide all her real qualities. Once the Empress was asked what recreation she liked best. She replied, "A poem well read and a book."

Dear dad, send me $500. Money makes the mare go.

College Youth (writing to father):—Dear dad, send me $500. Money makes the mare go.

Father (by return mail)—Yours received. Inclosed $50. That ought to be enough for a jackass.—Boston Times.
